FOREWORD

The Calendar of Expiring Collective Agreements is a compilation of major collective agreements in British Columbia which are scheduled to expire in the coming year. The publication includes those expiring agreements which cover 25 or more employees.

The total number of agreements and employees covered by expiries listed in the Calendar likely understates to some extent the bargaining activity to be expected during 1990. First, it is not possible to anticipate bargaining which will arise from first-contract negotiations where a trade union has been newly certified by the Industrial Relations Council. Second, at the time data for the Calendar was being assembled in November 1989, a number of collective agreements were in the process of being re-negotiated. Some of these renewed agreements will likely expire in 1990 but at the time of the publication it was not known which of them will be up for negotiation again in the coming year. A revised list of upcoming expiries is published each month in Collective Bargaining Information which is available from Crown Publications in Victoria.

The information contained in the Calendar was compiled by Sharon Churchill of the Policy and Legislation Branch. Our thanks are extended to employers and unions who cooperated in providing expiry information to the Branch.

INTRODUCTION

A total of 425 major collective agreements covering 25 or more employees will expire in British Columbia during the 1990 calendar year. These expiries cover 93,589 employees within the province. Although the number of collective agreement expiries during the year is higher than last year's total of 305, the agreements cover fewer workers than did last year's expiries (121,282). The fact that several large agreements in health care, construction, government service, and wood products carry through into 1991 certainly has impacted on the 1990 employees covered totals.

Important negotiations will be occurring throughout 1990 in various industrial sectors, although the months of June and December will be of particular note with 101 and 110 major expiries, respectively, or nearly one-half of the year's total. In addition, these two months will experience close to 60% of the total workers covered by major expiries for the year. This information is presented in Table 2 and the accompanying graph.

In terms of industry, the public sector tends to dominate the 1990 bargaining calendar, both in terms of numbers of expiring collective agreements and in terms of total employees covered. In educational services, 116 expiries covering 38,154 employees will occur during the year. Most of these expiries take place at the end of June when a number of contracts between school districts and local teacher associations are due to expire. The municipal field provides a second large number of contract expiries with 67 collective agreements, covering 14,724, employees up for renewal during 1990. The majority of these contracts expire on December 31 and include a number of Lower Mainland municipal workers. Also in the public sector are contract expiries at B.C. Rail, with its Council of Unions covering 1,767 workers (June 30), and at the B.C. Ferries Corporation with the 2,600 members of the Ferry and Marine Workers' Union (October 31).

Shifting over to the private sector, 1990 will also see a number of major collective agreement expiries. A total of 104 expiries will occur in the manufacturing sector during the year, covering 16,890 employees. Manufacturing expiries are spread throughout the year with the largest concentration being the 23 contracts expiring during March. In terms of employees covered, June and March are the most significant for the manufacturing sector. The three largest private sector expiries during 1990 will be those between Canadian Airlines International and the Machinists (2,037 employees expiring on May 20), Cominco-Steelworkers (June 30 covering 2,700 workers) and the June 23 expiry covering 1,493 employees of Alcan Smelters in Kitimat (represented by CASAW, Local 1).
